Licenses

Featured licenses

Apache License 2.0

A permissive license that also provides an express grant of patent rights from contributors to users.

Required
- License and copyright notice
- State Changes

Permitted
- Commercial Use
- Distribution
- Modification
- Patent Use
- Private Use

Forbidden
- Hold Liable
- Trademark Use

View full Apache License 2.0 license »

GNU GPL

The GNU GPL is the most widely used free software license and has a strong copyleft requirement. When distributing derived works, the source code of the work must be made available under the same license.

GNU AGPLv3   GNU GPLv2   GNU GPLv3

Required
- Disclose Source
- License and copyright notice
- Same License
- State Changes

Permitted
- Commercial Use
- Distribution
- Modification
- Patent Use
- Private Use

Forbidden
- Hold Liable

View full GNU General Public License v3.0 license »

MIT License

A permissive license that is short and to the point. It lets people do anything with your code with proper attribution and without warranty.

Required
- License and copyright notice

Permitted
- Commercial Use
- Distribution
- Modification
- Private Use

Forbidden
- Hold Liable

View full MIT License license »

Other licenses

Some communities tend to have specific licenses preferred by the community. For example, Perl developers often choose the Artistic License.

Artistic License 2.0

Heavily favored by the Perl community, the Artistic license requires that modified versions of the

Required
- License and copyright

Permitted
- Commercial Use

Forbidden
- Hold Liable

software do not prevent users from running the standard version.

notice		Distribution		Trademark Use
State Changes		Modification
		Patent Use
		Private Use

View full Artistic License 2.0 license »

Eclipse Public License 1.0

This commercially-friendly copyleft license provides the ability to commercially license binaries; a modern royalty-free patent license grant; and the ability for linked works to use other licenses, including commercial ones.

Required	Permitted	Forbidden
Disclose Source	Commercial Use	Hold Liable
License and copyright notice	Distribution
Same License	Modification
	Patent Use
	Private Use

View full Eclipse Public License 1.0 license »

BSD

A permissive license lets people do anything with your code with proper attribution and without warranty. The ISC license is functionally equivalent to the BSD 2-Clause and MIT licenses, removing some language that is no longer necessary.

BSD 2-Clause   BSD 3-Clause   ISC License

Required	Permitted	Forbidden
License and copyright notice	Commercial Use	Hold Liable
	Distribution
	Modification
	Private Use

View full ISC License license »

GNU LGPL

Version 3 of the GNU LGPL is an additional set of permissions to the GNU GPLv3 license that requires that derived works be licensed under the same license, but works that only link to it do not fall under this restriction.

GNU LGPLv2.1   GNU LGPLv3

Required	Permitted	Forbidden
Disclose Source	Commercial Use	Hold Liable
License and copyright notice	Distribution
Same License	Modification
	Patent Use
	Private Use

View full GNU Lesser General Public License v3.0 license »

Mozilla Public License 2.0

The Mozilla Public License (MPL 2.0) is maintained by the Mozilla foundation. This license attempts to be a compromise between the permissive BSD license and the reciprocal GPL license.
Required	Permitted	Forbidden
Disclose Source	Commercial Use	Hold Liable
License and copyright notice	Distribution	Trademark Use
Same License	Modification
	Patent Use

● Private Use

Public Domain Dedication

Because copyright is automatic in most countries, the Unlicense is a template to waive copyright interest in software you've written and dedicate it to the public domain. Use the Unlicense to opt out of copyright entirely. It also includes the no-warranty statement from the MIT/X11 license.

CC0 1.0 Universal   The Unlicense

Required   Permitted   Forbidden

● Commercial Use   ● Hold Liable
● Distribution
● Modification
● Private Use

About   Terms of Service

Demystified with <3 by GitHub, Inc.